Research

groups, active in the research field of MFCs, are welcome to join the Microbial Fuel Cell platform. In order to become a member of the MFC-platform your research group needs to be active in the field of MFCs.

As a member of the MFC-platform your research group is introduced on the website and you can present your MFC designs and your published MFC-papers.

We ask each member to promote the website by putting a link on his/her website and to mention the website on seminars/conferences. Members are also asked to supply tutorials, texts, novelties, etc about MFCs. We also strongly stimulate any effort to organise meetings or workshops on MFCs.

We believe this will make the website evolve to an unique resource of information on MFCs which is available for a broad public.

If your research group, active in the field of MFCs, wants to participate in the MFC-platform, please send an e-mail to newmember@microbialfuelcell.org and we will contact you as soon as possible!
